

Epidaurus Festival and the World of Culture

Culture is a sensible projection of what is best within us. It overarches all human endeavours guarding against the desolation of the world-soul, that obscure void which inevitably allows for the rise of bleak signposts that lead us down the road of barbarism and destruction at the end of which lies only the abyss of perdition. It is one of the most distinguished torch-carriers of the light of creation.

Beside language, culture's main pillar, stands the pillar of arts. Its facets are many, its span wide. It is sine qua non of a healthy civilization.

As one of the world's cornerstones in the base of the pillar of arts, Epidaurus Festival is as much a celebration of the young artist's endeavours as it is a reflection of the innermost in our humaneness mirrored in the truly ingenious expressions in literature, fine arts and music. This year's programme will doubtless leave one in awe. I await its commencement with a bated breath.
